Orrtanna at Bonneauville.
Fairfield at Bendersville.

Arendtsville moved into a tie for first place with Fairfield on the Adams County Baseball league Saturday afternoon by defeating Fairfield 7-4 before a large crowd at Arendtsville.

The apple pickers knocked Bercau, Fairfield ace, from the mound in the third inning. Russ Kane's triple with two aboard being the pay off blow which gave Arendtsville a 5-0 lead at the end of the third inning.

Thomas, Arendtsville hurler, sailed along comfortably until the sixth when Fairfield picked up a run. In the seventh Fairfield threatened to tie the score but its rally was cut short by an unusual double play. Successive hits by McClain, McGlaughlin and Herring were good for two runs. Ulrich beat out an infield hit which put Herring on third and none out. Ulrich was then thrown out trying to steal second base and N. Kane relayed the ball to Allison at third to nip Herring who had strayed too far off the base.

Russ Kane Homers
After Fairfield tabbed a run in the top half of the eighth on a pair of errors, a fielder's choice and a single, Arendtsville erased all doubt as to the outcome in its half when N. Kane walked and scored ahead of Russ Kane when the latter poled a long homerun to right center.

McSherrystown pulled up to a tie for second place with Emmitsburg by crushing the latter team at Emmitsburg 8-2.

Orrtanna and Bonneauville snapped out of their losing ways by scoring victories.
Orrtanna nosed out Littletown on the latter's field 4-3 in a game which required 10 innings.
Bonneauville came through with a 3-1 victory at Bendersville.

WILLIAM HART DIES

Los Angeles, June 24 (AP)—William S. Hart, Eastern-born "Wild West" movie actor of a quarter of a century ago, died late last night of lingering infirmity which had called his son home from Washington, D. C., last month to enter a court fight over the dying man's affairs.

Australian Is Major U.S. Hazard

London, June 24 (AP)—A powerful United States tennis team today begins the defense of all five titles in the Wimbledon championships with a good chance of repeating the 1939 American grand slam—if they can repel the challenge of Dennis Pails of Australia.

Pails, a salesman whose nickname has been "Dinny" since an official misspelled it on a tournament program, is the major hazard to American chances.

He is seeded number one in men's singles ahead of Californian Jack Kramer who will have to beat him in the finals. With his countryman, Geoff Brown, Pails is top-seeded in the men's doubles.

Pails can be beaten. Pancho Segura, the Ecuador chatterbox, proved that Saturday in the London grass courts tournament in a three-set match. But Pails' fans—and Dinny himself—were quick to predict a different outcome over five sets as they will play at Wimbledon.

None of the eight seeded men are threatened seriously in today's first round matches which see all 128 entrants in action on 16 courts.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, June 24 (AP)—Last year 40 players competed in the Inter-collegiate Golf championship at Columbus, Ohio. This week at Princeton, N. J., 40 schools have entered 160 golfers and by the time they finish taking the Springdale course apart you may find some contenders for the national amateur title. . . . There are any number of college golfers who can whip through an occasional round in the low 70s, but none was good enough to qualify for the open this year. . . . Tex Coulter, who couldn't represent West Point in any big track meet this spring because of scholastic deficiencies, will not get a fling at the A.A.U. shot put title this week for the same reason. . . . Incidentally, the Giants' Steve Owen claims that three years of pro football would make Coulter the greatest tackle of all time. . . . If Tex goes through with his plan to become a wingman at Georgia Tech, you can say plenty of opposing backs will come to a bad end.

ALL IN THE VIEW POINT

Jersey Jones, who maintains the Louis-Conn imbroglio was a good exhibition of boxing (as distinguished from an exciting fight) wants to know how present-day fans would react if they had to sit through something like the famous Corbett-Jeffries fight at Coney Island in 1900. "For 23 rounds it was a big, lumbering guy like Jeffries chasing a little man who stabbed and ran away," says Jersey. "If they had anything like that now it wouldn't be just one congressman suing Mike Jacobs but the whole damned senate."

MONDAY MATINEE

The National Collegiate A.A. is planning a meeting of leaders of some 20 college conferences in July to discuss a uniform national policy on eligibility—if they can reconcile 20 different ideas of what the policy ought to be. . . . Jockey Warren Mehrtens, who coaches and plays for a suburban sandlot team, claims he'd rather win a ball game than win a race aboard Assault. Wanna bet? . . . Since he took charge of the athletic purse strings at Kansas U. Ernie Quigley has reduced the stadium debt from $113,000 to $48,000 that would pay for a couple of good tackles. . . . Greasy Neale, Philly Eagles' coach, has been getting in some "secret" practice at Sid Luckman's Berkshire Hills resort for the annual golf match in which Greasy and Grantland Rice take on Bud Kelland and Bruce Barton.

Lancaster divided a twin bill with Harrisburg, and Hagerstown split with Sunbury, in other games.
Lancaster won 6-5, in the opener but lost the second, 5-1. Hagerstown won in the first contest, 9-5, but fell, 3-1, in the nightcap.
Tonight's schedule: Harrisburg at Wilmington.

PHILS WIN, TIE TWIN GAMES IN OVERTIME TILTS

By JOE REICHLER

Baseball fans, ever ready to cheer for the underdog, have switched their allegiance from Tom Yawkey's millionaire Boston Red Sox to Bob Carpenter's from-rags-to-riches Philadelphia Phillies, who threatened today to bolt the National league's second division where they've held an ironclad lease for 13 years.

All over the nation fans who are watching the amazing Phillies' gallant bid for at least fourth place, are saying "It's about time." For the Blue Jays, only once a pennant winner, have ventured out of the darkness of the second division only once since 1917.

Less than a month ago, the Phils—futile Phils then—were languishing in their familiar cellar abode with eight victories and 24 defeats. Philly fans were resigned to another eighth-place club, which looked as if it might set a new record for games lost, something it came close to doing last year.

Best Showing Since 1931

Since that date, May 29, the Phils—flaming Phils now—have won 17 of 23 and have climbed to sixth place only one and a half notches away from fourth place—and the first division.

Not since the halycon days of the Athletics of 1931 have Philadelphia fans shown so much enthusiasm. They have flocked to Shibe Park in such large numbers that already the attendance in 25 home games has topped last year's season total by more than 125,000. Following an all-time Philadelphia record crowd of 22,663 Saturday spectators, a standing-room-only crowd of 33,949 paid admissions watched their favorites earn a victory and a tie in their double header with the Cincinnati Reds yesterday.

Both contests were overtime duels, with the Phils winning the first game 5-4 on Jim Tabor's 12th-inning home run for their fourth in a row, and the second halted by Pennsylvania's Sunday curfew law with the score tied at 3-3 at the end of 11 frames.

The American-league leading Red Sox appear to be back in their winning stride after their double drubbing of the Cleveland Indians 5-1 and 6-0.

Brooks Boost Lead

The sweep enabled the Red Sox to increase their first-place lead to seven games over the Yankees, although the Bronx Bombers defeated the Detroit Tigers 10-8 in 11 innings. Brooklyn increased its National league lead to two and a half games over the runner-up St. Louis Cardinals by taking the rubber game of the three-game series with the Redbirds 4-2.

The third-place Chicago Cubs emerged all even after a torrid slugfest with the New York Giants by winning the second game 9-4 after dropping the first, 15-10. In all, 55 hits were made by both sides, 16 for extra bases, including five home runs.

The Boston Braves moved into fourth place with a double victory over Pittsburgh, 4-3 and 4-0. Washington and St. Louis' Browns split a twin bill, exchanging 7-4 scores with Joe Grace later absorbing an 8-1 lacing by the Chicago White Sox, the Philadelphia Athletics came back to win the second game, 6-1.

Plane Crash Kills Father And Daughter

Williamsport, Pa., June 24 (AP)—A father and daughter were killed yesterday when a plane they were using on a sight-seeing trip crashed to earth on a Lycoming county farm.

The dead were William Howard Swisher, 37, a marine corps veteran stationed at the Marine Supply depot in Philadelphia, and Vivian Louise, his 15-year-old daughter, who had been making her home with relatives in Williamsport.

The father was piloting the plane when it crashed on the farm of Mahlon E. Wilcox, about a mile from the town of Linden, in Lycoming county. Both were dead when Wilcox reached the wreckage.

McNattin Heads Cancer Division

Harrisburg, June 24 (AP)—Dr. Robert F. McNattin, of Mechanicsburg was named today as director of a newly created cancer division in Pennsylvania's Department of Health.

Dr. Harry W. Weest, Secretary of Health, in announcing the appointment said "the division's objective will be to make facilities for the diagnosis and treatment of cancer accessible to every person in Pennsylvania."

The new division will work with the cancer commission of the state medical society and the Pennsylvania division of the American society in an effort to coordinate cancer activities in all of the state's 67 counties.

SHROYER GROUP PACKERS CLOSE; $49,404 IN DEBT CITE CONGRESS

Harrisburg, June 24 (AP)—The New Guard of Pennsylvania, the campaign committee for the unsuccessful bid of former Highways Secretary John U. Shroyer for the Republican nomination for governor, listed expenses today totaling $96,858 in the May 21 primary campaign.

Thomas G. Rasbridge, treasurer of the New Guard, said in a report filed with the state elections bureau that the committee ended the campaign with unpaid debts totaling $49,404, representing loans from Shroyer and Maud D. Shroyer.

Contributions totaled $96,858 including the loans.
Expenses of the campaign ranged from $33,615 paid county chairmen of the New Guard organization to $1,505 for telephone and telegraph. Other items include headquarters $5,304; printing, $9,519; advertising, $27,793, and radio $11,565.

Most of the contributions to the committee came from the Shroyer family. In addition to the loans mentioned from Shroyer and Maud D. Shroyer, gifts of $4,000 were reported from John E. Shroyer, $5,100 from Lawton W. Shroyer and $384 from George W. Shroyer.

The former highways secretary also was down for gifts totaling $17,333 and Maud D. Shroyer, for $2,500. Also listed were donations totaling $7,000 from William Harman and $2,000 from "Mr. Sharpless."

L. John Stonestier, Westminster R. 1, paid a fine of $10 and costs on a speeding charge brought before Justice of the Peace Howard G. Blocher, Littlestown, by state police from the Gettysburg substation.

William Harris, Gettysburg, was released Sunday from the county jail on payment of a fine and costs to Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder on a charge of being drunk and disorderly brought by borough police.

Says Wage Balance Would Cut Strikes

Reading, Pa., June 24 (AP)—If there was no difference in pay rates for workers doing the same jobs there would be less strikes, says Dr. George W. Taylor, former chairman of the War Labor board.

Taylor told the 17th Annual Eastern Pennsylvania Industrial conference sponsored by the foremen's clubs Saturday at nearby Earlville, that a "balanced wage rate structure" would help relieve industrial friction.

He added that a lack of discipline in industrial plants also is a serious cause of labor-management disputes.

Foremen and supervisors from Pottsville, Coatesville, Allentown, Hazleton, Williamsport, Philadelphia, Chester, Easton, Harrisburg, Lancaster, York and Norristown were present.

NO GRATITUDE

Lynchburg, Va., June 24 (AP)—Sunday school picnic leader Walter C. McGill thinks kindness to animals can be carried too far.

Several of his young charges came running up with a skunk in distress, its head caught in a jelly jar. Compassionate, McGill cracked the jar with a rock.
Misunderstanding the kindly act, the skunk, in self defense, took steps. McGill, alas, didn't.

Today's Talk

CARELESSNESS

It is carelessness mostly that accounts for so many of our road accidents. When I note the large number of dents and evidences of neglect and carelessness in the cars that I pass daily, I am reminded of an almost universal trait among people that is anything but admirable.

When I get a book in my hands that someone has carelessly opened with their fingers where the leaves have been uncut, I feel as I might when upon meeting a person, he had first slapped me in the face, before shaking hands with me! I feel this way for books embody so much of the human elements of the one who wrote it, and our regard for his book should be our regard for him—or her, as the case may be.

Thomas Love Peacock was a most exacting English writer. It is said that he rarely answered a personal letter upon its receipt, preferring to think about it, and compose it carefully in his mind first, so that a week or so often was spent before his response. He once said: "If I allow myself to be careless in writing even a single letter, I should certainly sooner or later be careless in writing some page of a book."

Neglect of the little things causes more trouble and anguish than words are able to express. I am reminded of that oft quoted saying of Dr. Johnson's: "There is nothing, Sir, too little for such a creature as Man. It is by studying little things that we attain the great art of having as little misery and as much happiness as possible."

The new, little creaking of a noise in an engine, is the call for attention. Carelessness at such a time may later result in tragedy. Many of our greatest fires have been the result of pure carelessness.

The careless tossing away of a burning cigarette has often resulted in the death of many human beings. At the root of all carelessness is selfishness, or at least indifference. None of us can afford to be careless about anything—our work, our body, our friends, or our attitude toward life, if we would be successful and own a reasonable happiness.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "We Are Led By Our Likes"

FISHERMAN'S CHANCE
To slip away from fretful care,
To breathe awhile in cleaner air,
To quit the shore and be alone
And live with thoughts that are his own;
To share the peace of sky and stream,
As Shakespeare said: "Perchance to dream!"
These joys, since first the art began,
Have gladdened many a fisherman.

No more to hear the speech of trade,
The grind of gears where things are made,
The bickering to buy or sell,
But in a gentler realm to dwell;
To rest beneath a stainless sky,
To watch the gray gulls winging by,
To know the calm of ancient trees!
A day out fishing gives all these.

Fire: About 3 o'clock on Wednesday morning, a fire broke out in the frame stable of E. B. Buehler, Esq., on Baltimore street, which extended to the stable of Col. E. G. Fahnestock, destroying both with the adjoining fencing. The brick dwelling belonging to the estate of Hon. Moses McClean, deceased, across the alley, took fire several times, but was saved by the unremitting exertion of citizens. Mr. Buehler loses about $260 and Col. Fahnestock from $400 to $500—the latter having an insurance of $225 in the Adams county Company.

The new Engine worked as well as could have been expected with the defective supply of water. This fire shows the propriety of the arrangements for an increased supply of water, and the purchase of a small, light-engine, which can be run into yards, and be made to utilize the wells and cisterns to be found on almost every lot.

Plants Grow Best As Soil Dries Out After Soaking

Veteran gardeners have long practiced the maxim: Give a plant (or a garden) a drink when it's dry. In other words, do not keep the soil wet, but let it get thirsty between drinks.

In a lecture to florists, Dr. J. Boyd Page of Ohio State university gave a scientific view of the problem of watering, which indorsed this old gardener's maxim.

A good soil holds both water and air at the same time, he said. These are held in spaces between the soil particles, called "pores." When there is an excess of water, air is driven out and the plants suffer for lack of it. This occurs in gardens when water stands on the surface; and is the reason why quick drainage of excess water is so important.

Lack of water, on the other hand, is also harmful to the plants. A balance between air and water must be maintained. A plant will make the best root growth, said Dr. Page, when the soil is soaked, and the excess drains away quickly, fresh air enters the soil to take the place of the water. The roots reach out for water as the supply diminishes, and vigorous growth results.

Dr. Page's explanation makes it clear why an alternating cycle of thorough watering, and a period of drying out should be followed.

But watering should be thorough

Late June Is Time To Plant Hollyhocks

The tall, graceful habit of hollyhocks makes them ideal plants for backgrounds where space will not permit the use of spreading subjects. The single-flowered kinds are the easiest to grow and often last for several years. Those which have double flowers behave mostly like biennials, which means that they bloom the second year after sowing and perish afterward.

Late June is a good time to sow the seeds either where the plants are to bloom or in a special seed-bed. Give the seedlings ample room to make a vigorous growth and transplant to their flowering place early the following spring. They like a fairly rich soil with good drainage and a sunny position.

Mulches Used To Keep Down Weeds

Placed between rows of plants, mulches will tend to keep down weed growth, and the organic material contained in the mulches will benefit the soil. Peat moss is one of the best materials for mulching. Lawn clippings also are very good. Other materials which can be used to advantage are hay and weed clippings, leaf mold from forests, pine needles and weathered sawdust.

Mulching especially is beneficial on berry bushes, grapevines, ornamental plantings, asparagus and rhubarb. It also is an excellent practice with any of the wider garden crops like tomatoes, corn and pole beans, since here the material can be applied without disturbing the plants too much.

Most rock gardens are anything but attractive during the summer months and much of this is the result of neglect of the spring bloomers. Just as soon as a kind is finished blooming cut away the flower stems and all straggly shoots.

JUNE GARDENS FACE RAIDS BY BEETLE ARMIES

Two major insect pests are now in home gardens, according to Neely Turner, entomologist at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station. The Mexican bean beetle and the striped cucumber beetle annually make severe depredations on garden vegetables if not checked.

The Mexican bean beetle, says Mr. Turner, is one of the easiest pests to control, and yet each year home gardeners report great difficulty with this insect. The trick, he says, lies in applying insecticides to the undersides of the leaves. Dusts or sprays of rotenone, pyrethrum or cryolite are excellent for the purpose.

Larvae Do Damage
In appearance the beetle is one-quarter of an inch long, yellow in color and oval in shape. The light yellow larvae do the damage, feeding on the under surfaces of the foliage.

The striped cucumber beetle's feeding habits make it somewhat difficult to control. The beetles appear in numbers within a very short time. They attack one plant in a row, riddling it within a matter of hours, and then move on to the next.

The time to start dusting or spraying, says Mr. Turner, is when you see the first cucumber beetle. Do not wait until the second one shows up. Cryolite, rotenone or pyrethrum are good here.

Jumping Insects
The beetles can be recognized readily by their distinctive markings. They are yellow with three black stripes running lengthwise and have a black head. They attack cucumbers, melons and squash, feeding on the leaves. They also carry wilt disease from plant to plant.

Cryolite or rotenone may be used

Brief Facts About Canning

Housewives who have any doubts or question marks about proper methods to employ in home canning of foods for winter should write to the United States Department of Agriculture, Office of Information, Washington 25, D. C. for any or all of the following free publications:

AWI-65—Take Care Of Pressure Canners.

AWI-93—Home Canning.

F.B. 1762—Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables.

F.B. 1800—Homemade Jellies, Jams and Preserves.

Of course, the editor invites any questions readers wish to ask in this important summer task.

It is always a safe policy to can only fresh fruits and vegetables. Often a few slightly over-ripe specimens may endanger entire supplies of otherwise sound foods. Over-ripe portions may occasionally be utilized for making jellies, jams or for immediate table use.

Rarely is enough emphasis placed on having jars, spoons, kettles, canners, lids, knives and other canning equipment thoroughly clean and carefully sterilized.

Freshness calls for prompt canning after crops are harvested. To capture this maximum flavor and texture implied in the peak of freshness calls for speedy work in canning.

The primary purpose in heating foods for canning is to destroy the bacteria and other organisms which cause decay. If foods are acid, such as tomatoes, rhubarb and fruits, or if such non-acid vegetables as beets or cucumbers are prepared or pickled in a vinegar solution, the open-kettle method may be used safely. canisters must be used to destroy these dangerous bacteria.

In cases of doubt about time and method to employ, always look up time tables backed by scientific research. Never depend on hear-say information from neighbors. Death or serious illness from food poisoning may be the penalty for doubt or carelessness.

Be certain jars are sealed airtight to keep organisms of spoilage out after proper preparation and canning methods have destroyed those within.

Store canned foods in a cool, dark, dry place. Protect jars from insular surroundings and extremes of temperature and humidity.

Heat near canned foods, encourages otherwise dormant bacteria to multiply and start their destructive activities. Freezing may not injure canned foods but may cause seals to crack and admit bacteria.

Light causes canned foods to lose their brightness and may destroy valuable vitamins. Therefore, darkness is stressed. If no other method is possible, wrap each jar in black or dark paper.

Again—tomatoes, rhubarb and all acid fruits, plus vegetables canned in a vinegar solution may be canned by the open-kettle method; all non-acid foods must be canned under pressure.

When Rose Chafers Arrive

The common name "rose" chaffer, as it is applied to the insect so well known in lawns and gardens, is somewhat misleading, chiefly because this invader does not by any means confine its attacks to roses. In years of heavy infestations it may feed on and seriously defoliate grape vines and almost all other deciduous vines and shrubs. And while chafers seldom kill plants outright by their skeletonizing of the leaves, they may inflict injuries which so weaken the plant that susceptibility to diseases or the attacks of other pests may prove fatal.

The adult rose chaffer is a fawn-colored, awkward beetle measuring about one-third of an inch long. There is but one generation each year in this latitude. The female beetle lays her eggs singly in loose soil in early August, usually a total of 24 to 36. These hatch in a few days into small white grubs which feed on the roots of grass and other plants until shortly before cold weather comes. Then they burrow deeper into the soil to spend the winter. In late spring they pupate and transform into beetles which emerge from late May until the middle of June, depending on weather conditions. The beetles may feed about a month, although some remain active as long as six weeks.

There are three main ways to keep rose chafers under control: (1) Hand picking; (2) Use of insecticides; and (3) Covering threatened plants.

The clumsy beetles may be easily jarred from plants early in the morning. An excellent way to do this is to pour a film of kerosene on the surface of a broad pail of water and then have an assistant help bend infested branches over the vessel and jar the chafers into the kerosene. Or the individual chafers may be removed by hand and killed.

Where roses receive the recommended weekly applications of Massey dust—one part lead arsenate and nine parts of superfine dusting sulphur—rose chafers are often kept under control. But where this is not done a special spray of lead arsenate is often necessary—one ounce to two gallons of water in which about a half cupful or slightly more of molasses has been thoroughly mixed to serve as a spreader.

When rose chafers attack grape vines the regular grape spray schedule usually controls them. But in case a special spray is needed, add lead arsenate to Bordeaux mixture at the rate of one ounce to two gallons and coat the foliage uniformly.

Rose growers generally have experienced trouble with chafers displaying white and other light-colored roses by feeding on the bloom petals and ruining the blooms with their excrement. Where special roses are grown for cutting or exhibition, the blooms may be protected by a covering of mosquito netting or cheesecloth.

Among other control measures are applications of rotenone or any of the commercial pyrethrum sprays. And too, spading up loose, sandy soils in late May to expose and kill transforming pupae is an effective means of control. In no case should chafers be allowed to become numerous before direct combat is started.

The editor will gladly answer all questions readers wish to ask about control of this and all other lawn and garden insects. Write him whenever help is needed.

Times Misinformed

The Adams County Fruit Packing and Distributing company of Biglerville gave a $20 contribution toward the recent benefit performance of the Mikado, Mrs. Elmer W. Warren, chairman of the benefit committee announced today. The Gettysburg Times was incorrectly informed that the amount had been given by the Adams Apple Products Corporation of Aspers.

SEVERE 'QUAKE HITS NORTHWEST COASTAL AREA

Seattle, June 24 (AP)—Walls fell and a hillside walked yesterday morning in the Pacific northwest when a strong earth shock jarred a wedge-shaped piece of the coastal area from Vancouver Island to Kilowina in Central British Columbia and south to Olympia, Wash.

One man died, Jacob L. Kingston, 69, succumbing to heart failure when Seattle's downtown buildings swayed above him as he walked toward church. There were no other reports of deaths or injuries.

The quake knocked the needle from the recorder at the University of Washington's seismograph at 9:14:30 a. m. (PST) and was recorded at 9:14 by the dominion astrophysical observatory in Victoria, B. C. It was noticeable for a full minute to Seattleites, but the university reported its equipment continued to record vibrations for an hour.

Buildings Damaged

"It was the most severe in several years," said Dr. J. A. Pearce, director of the dominion station, estimating its epicenter as near Victoria, probably 25 miles distant. From the villages along the east coast of Vancouver Island, north of Victoria, came reports of extensive damage to buildings and roads. A 300-foot high hill "walked" 35 feet closer to the sea at Campbell river and a house moved five feet off its foundations.

At Port Alberni the top of a brick-fronted building crashed to the street. At Courtenay a collapsing chimney smashed through two floors of an elementary school into a classroom which, on a week day, would have been occupied by 60 children. One wall collapsed from the Courtenay postoffice and plate glass show windows were shattered.

Narrow Escapes

Across the Strait of Georgia at Vancouver, B. C., tall buildings swayed crazily and a piece of masonry crashed to the pavement from the Canadian National railway station, narrowly missing a group of people. A low-pressure gas line snapped and there were several power interruptions.

George Finley, Canadian Press staff writer, said the Lions gate bridge across the entrance to Vancouver Harbor, largest suspension span in the empire, "swayed like a leaf." He said the tremor was accompanied by "a low rumbling sound, like a deep growl."

One bridge on a highway leading into Seattle was cracked but traffic continued to cross, with highway department employees on hand to keep it moving slowly.

Truman Visits At Thurmont Hideout

Washington, June 23 (AP)—President Truman returned to the White House Sunday night after a weekend in Maryland.

Mr. Truman got back to the Executive Mansion at 8:25 p. m. (EST) after a trip to Frederick, Md., where he attended the annual picnic of the Alfa club, a Washington social organization, on Saturday.

He spent Saturday night and most of Sunday at "Shangri La," the former hideout of President Roosevelt, near Thurmont, Md.

Mosquitos

tion of the mosquitos is accomplished by means of fumigation, swatting, hand catching, or the removal of vegetation which would protect the insects from sun and wind. Man is protected from the bites of mosquitos by the screening of buildings, by mosquito netting on beds, by the use of hand nets and gloves.

"Anti-mosquito draining to be effective must usually be planned and installed for the specific purpose of eliminating or reducing the extent of mosquito breeding waters. Ordinary agricultural or roadside drainage not only frequently fails to remove the water in a way that will prevent mosquito breeding, but by spreading the water and increasing its surface area, may actually cause an increase in mosquito breeding.

"As anopheles are unable to withstand the effects of the direct rays of the sun or high winds, they avoid sunlight and seek shelter from the elements in vegetation, such as brushy plants, weeds, high grass or reeds."

Major Dunham says that under favorable conditions the adult mosquito may live as long as three months, but that the normal life expectancy is probably two weeks to one month, and when breeding places are controlled, the majority of the adult forms present in a locality may be expected to disappear within a month.

Declares Reds

der. It was released by the War Department, which said only minor details were deleted for security reasons.

In it the present Army Chief of Staff recorded briefly his difficulties of coordination with the Red Army while leading the teamwork of the Western Allies. The United States and Great Britain, he said, fought as "one nation."

Cites Nazi Mistakes

Aside from teamwork, Eisenhower concluded that the victory was due to Allied might and "invincibility of spirit" and to miscalculations by Hitler and Field Marshal Von Rundstedt, the Nazi commander in the west.

In Eisenhower's judgment, three battles were decisive in liberating Europe:

1. The battle of the Normandy beaches, where the foe was revealed as a stubborn fighter but beset by difficulties of supply and communications resulting largely from the Allied hammering from the air.

"Completely misled" by allied diversionary operations, Von Rundstedt held the bulk of his forces in the Pas-de-Calais opposite England, waiting for a second assault which never came.

2. The battle of the Falaise pocket, where the enemy "showed that fatal tendency to stand and fight when all the logic of war demanded a strategic withdrawal."

Home Army Shattered

Battles west of the Rhine during February and March, 1945, where "the armies which had been intended to defend Germany were shattered beyond recovery."

Of the Russians, Eisenhower said that in planning for the final spring drive last year it was recognized that its success hinged to a large degree upon the weight of the Red Army's

JIGGER MORAN

by JOHN ROEBURT

Chapter 11

Jigger lay on the bed in an attitude of sleep, his senses alert, his ears listening to the creaking sounds of feet, the animal sounds of voices.

He was exhausted and his eyelids contracted violently to shut the world out, but the room made a clear picture in his mind.

Captain A'hearn was a grotesque jabberwocky breathing heavy clouds of cigar smoke just inside the threshold, and Mrs. Fogarty was being uncommonly astute but futile in her attempts to usher A'hearn out of the room and back into the street.

A'hearn snorted, his thick membrane lips impaled on Jigger's mind's eye. "Ma'am, I've been fighting my way in here inch by inch since I rang the bell over ten minutes ago. Does it have to be the club before you think better than to interfere with the law?"

Mrs. Fogarty began a sentence with determined impudence, but her voice simmered helplessly without completing it.

Captain A'hearn moved noisily across the room and Jigger felt trapped, tortured, victim to the official finger poking the swell of his chest. Jigger contracted into a ball and rolled to the farthest end of the bed, but there was no immunity and he propped himself up on one arm.

"What do you want, A'hearn?" A'hearn pointed conscientiously toward Mrs. Fogarty, and Jigger motioned her out of the room. A'hearn sat ponderously on the edge of the bed and cleared his throat. "Can you give me one good reason why I shouldn't arrest Little Joey for murder?"

"Don't tell me you strong-armed your way in here just to ask me that."

"I'm not asking Jigger—I'm telling."

Jigger's eyes wavered through the pall of cigar smoke, seeking to study A'hearn's face. His throat was dry, but his voice managed scorn: "So you finally got around to tagging Little Joey?"

"Yes—for murder. I'm tipping you off so you can get out from under."

"Nice of you to figure that safeguarding me was the first law of self-preservation, Capple. I suppose the fact that Joey's not your man has nothing to do with law enforcement."

A'hearn was irritably emphatic: "Joey's our man, all right."

Jigger stood at an open window facing the street and breathed in deeply until his lungs ached. "Be reasonable, A'hearn. No one's after your scalp on this case. Why are you in the east?"

Eisenhower's deputy, Air Chief Marshal Tedder, and others of his staff received from Stalin in January a "full explanation" of the plans for a four-pronged offensive by 150 to 160 Red Army divisions.

Its success proved "even greater than had been anticipated," Eisenhower wrote.

Of the German final Ardennes counter-offensive which developed into the Battle of the Bulge in December, 1944, Eisenhower said he took a "calculated risk" in holding a quiet 75-mile front with no more than four divisions.

A'hearn was wrathful.

Jigger was buttoning his shirt, the fog out of his eyes, his manner serene. "I also want clearance on a heart-to-heart chat with Joey. I promise to keep strictly within bounds, Capple."

A'hearn came back inside and slammed the door shut. His face was chewing violently and he ran the gamut of curses. "I told you Joey was a double killer. How can I closet you with him with the whole department looking on?"

"For me—you'll do it. I have an abiding faith in your resourcefulness."

A'hearn kicked a chair over, his face broken. He struggled with the doorknob and stormed into the hall. (To be continued)

New York, June 24 (AP)—The day and hour depends entirely on tricky weather conditions encountered in the area, but, when it happens, Operations Crossroads—the Bikini atom bomb test in the Pacific—is to make an unusual all-network broadcast. Pickup of actual sound of the explosion is to be the prime sound effect.

SIZE OF VOTE TO DEPEND ON POLES' COURAGE

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.

(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Next Sunday's Polish plebiscite, and with it the fate of Vice Premier Mikolajczyk's Polish party, probably will be determined by the number of people who are willing to vote under the guns of a militia hastily organized by a government which has been waging a determined secret-police campaign against its political opponents.

The actions of the government itself in raiding and dissolving Polish peasant party units, in jailing thousands of dissenters, are sufficient to lend credence to the almost unanimous reports of foreign observers that Mikolajczyk represents an overwhelming proportion of the voters. But political terror, killings and imprisonment, have been stalking Poland for a year—committed by both sides, it is true. Although Mikolajczyk claims that support of this type from the former underground forces is not only unsolicited but unwelcome to his party.

Threat Of Jail

Knowing that some 75,000 and possibly 100,000 persons have been jailed without charge is enough to keep thousands and possibly millions of people away from the polls, even though the government did not plan to have 250,000 armed men standing by "to see that there is no trouble."

The voting Sunday is not technically a part of the "free elections" for which the western allies have been working, and which they were promised in Russian-dominated Central Europe. Actually it is a referendum on government policies—whether a one or two-house parliament is to be chosen on elections vaguely promised for "sometime in the autumn"; whether the people approve nationalization of industries and of land reforms in which big estates are being split up among the peasants; and whether they approve annexation of presently occupied portions of Germany.

But the showing of the Mikolajczyk forces will be highly indicative of the chances for any sort of democratic expression when elections do come. The Polish peasants are what might be described as leftist, but still democratic. Sunday's choice will be between their desire for a democratic legislature and the government desire for a Soviet-type set-up, the other issues on the ballot being largely bait.

Camp Ritchie Is Vacated By Army

The United States Army has left Camp Ritchie.

Last Wednesday at 3 p. m. the tall steel gates closed behind the last soldier, bringing to an end the full four-year existence of the nation's greatest and unpublishable intelligence camp.

Camp Ritchie is now transferred to the United States District Engineer in Washington, who will shortly terminate all contracts with the State of Maryland. Then the camp will be reverted to Maryland for use of National Guard training and Boy Scout camping.

Service Resumed By Hudson Tubes

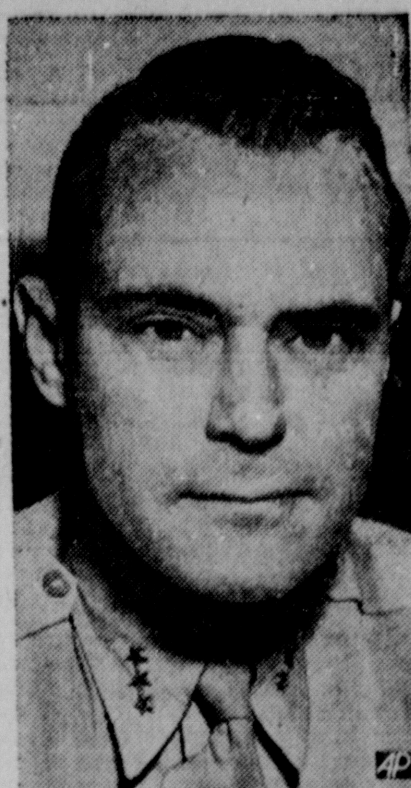

New York, June 24 (AP)—New Jersey commuters bound for New York city were using the Hudson tube trains for the first time in almost a month today as full scale service was resumed.

Partial service got under way Saturday night after the union and the Hudson and Manhattan railroad signed an agreement ending the 24-day strike and providing an 18½ cent hourly wage increase for approximately 700 engineers and trainmen.

NOW IT'S HUBCAPS

Smyser Reunion Draws Countians

Wars, which have ravaged Europe periodically for centuries, brought the progenitors of the Schmeisser-Smeisser-Smyser family to America as it did those of many other families, according to an address made by Attorney George Hay Kain at the bicentennial meeting of the clan at the York fair grounds Saturday afternoon.

The attorney traced the lineage of the Smyser clan back to 1693. He gave a lengthy account of the events which led to the migration to America of Barbara Schmeisser and her three children from their native Germany.

Included among those who addressed the meeting was General Jacob Loucks Devers, who was introduced by Samuel Smyser Lewis. He chose for his subject "York County's Participation in the American Wars." Another speaker was the Very Reverend William Hamilton Nes, dean of Christ church cathedral, New Orleans.

RELIEF COSTS MAY TOP FUNDS

Harrisburg, June 24 (AP)—Continuation of relief costs at their present level in Pennsylvania will result in exhaustion of the Legislature's $88,220,000 appropriation by mid-February.

Robert P. Wray, acting secretary of public assistance made this prediction in a report covering expenses for the first half of the biennium and released for publication yesterday.

In his report Secretary Wray disclosed that only $39,160,000 remains on hand for relief expenses and estimated that nearly $7,000,000 a month was being expended to care for the present relief load.

"It is too early to say whether the employment increases predicted for the coming months will help cut the relief load," said Wray.

Even with an increase in employment throughout the state Wray said there would be few jobs available for "the aged, the handicapped and other marginal employees who found work in wartime, but cannot compete in the postwar labor market."

He said that there was enough money on hand to carry beyond the first of the year. Should the funds run low, Wray explained, the Legislature, which meets in January would be asked to provide a deficiency appropriation to carry over to the end of the biennium on May 31.
